MICHAEL M. DAVIS is a life long resident of Chattanooga, TN, and is a third generation construction worker. Davis currently serves as Secretary/Treasurer of Construction and Improvement Specialty Company, a general contractor in Chattanooga.

The son of a brick mason, Davis started his construction career in 1969 after graduation from high school. Davis's original intent was to learn the masonry trade during the summer months while attending college to become an attorney. However, the construction bug bit, and Davis quit college and completed his masonry apprenticeship in 1973. After working several years as a brick mason, Davis was offered an opportunity to become a General Superintendent when the masonry contractor who employed him decided to enter the general contractor market.

Davis's work as a General Superintendent took him to projects in Florida, New York and Pennsylvania. After a couple of years in the field, Davis was promoted to Vice President of Construction Operations. The company soon began developing its own projects. Davis worked on projects through out the Southeast region of the country.

As a member of the Chattanooga Chapter of CSI, Davis has served as Chapter President and was involved in reviving the Marshall A. Hildebrand Scholarship for college students in the construction industry.

Davis has been involved in the East Tennessee Chapter of the Associated General Contractors since 1982. Davis has served on the Board of Directors of the Small Business Advisory Board (a program set up to mentor to small and beginning businesses) and the Greater Chattanooga Construction Industry Corporation (a program initiated by the City of Chattanooga to enable minority and disadvantaged construction companies to gain a foothold in the local construction market). Davis presently serves as a member of the East Tennessee State University Advisory Board.
