

Gregory J. Markling, FCSI

*“In recognition of your passion for excellence during your tenure as Certification Chair which expedited the difficult charges of creating machine gradable certification exams a year ahead of schedule, and fostering a coordinated program of certification recognition and developing a new certification renewal program, you are advanced to Fellowship in the Institute on the 26th day of June 1999.”
Los Angeles, California*

Since joining CSI in 1982, GREGORY MARKLING has made significant and consistent contributions to CSI at the Chapter, Region, and Institute levels. Greg's most significant passions in CSI are Certification and Education. His professional focus has always been technical excellence as a means of enhancing design excellence in the construction industry. He views CSI as the only construction industry organization that provides and promotes the tools and technology to achieve technical excellence as a design professional.

Greg has utilized his extensive experience as an Architect and his involvement in CSI to make several significant contributions to the advancement of construction technology and practice. He has authored a comprehensive Quality Management Manual for the firms with which he has worked, and has personally designed and managed several challenging construction projects requiring unique capabilities as a design professional. Further, he has developed and managed a comprehensive master specifications system that is utilized by his firm and its consultants. He has also led seminars and taught educational programs on a variety of construction industry topics, including specifications, construction administration, and quality assurance/control.

Finally, Greg has served the Institute continuously since 1982 in a wide variety of capacities at the Chapter, Region, and Institute levels with a strong sense of dedication and commitment. At the Chapter level, he served on the Board of Directors and as Certification Committee Chairman from 1983 to 1990, culminating in his service as Chapter President in 1991. He served as Region Certification Coordinator in 1989 and 1990 before accepting an appointment to the Institute Certification Committee the following year.

Greg is a graduate of the University of Arizona, with a Bachelor of Architecture, 1981. He is a Certified Construction Specifier, Certified Construction Contract Administrator, and LEED Accredited Professional, as well as NCARB Certified. Greg is a Principal and Partner of M+O+A Architectural Partnership in Denver, Colorado.

CSI Membership

Denver Chapter, 1982 to present

Institute Offices, Committees

Certification Committee Chairman, 1997-1999

Certification Committee, 1991-1999

Chapter Offices, Committees

Board of Directors, 1983-1992, 1998-1999

President, 1991

Awards

Region

Southwest Region Director Citation, 1990

Chapter

Certificate of Merit and Appreciation, 1990

Education Award, 1990

Chapter Citation, 1989

Certificate of Appreciation, 1988

Outstanding Professional Member, 1987

Education Award, 1986, 1987